

Lisa Laplace—short bio

My name is Lisa Laplace, and I am currently self-employed as a riding instructor and event organizer for my new business in Perrin, Texas. My professional passion is "Creating positive horse experiences that last a lifetime."

I have 38 years of experience running a successful horse training/show/lesson program in Napa Valley, California. My skill set includes an understanding of the intricacies within the horse industry as well as risk assessment and management. I have budgeting and enforcement skills working with the Marin County Department of Agriculture as a leader in their organic certification program. These skills recently opened doors for me to consult with The Fort Worth Herd for safety and compliance with their application with the Certified Horsemanship Association. My formal education at the University of Davis and California State University, Sonoma, combined with years of experience in many different fields, gives me a unique perspective. I love to follow through on innovative ideas, such as the Let's Talk seminar for APHA members, which exemplify my commitment to being an active part of a solution.
